Terrorists Peacefully In Cairo

Israelis Say No Concessions Made

CAIRO, Dec. 29 (Reuters) -Four Arab terrorists who seized the Israel Embassy in Bangkok for 18 hours yesterday arrived aboard a special Thai airliner at Cairo airport today and were whisked away in a car.

The terrorists freed six Israeli hostages unharmed this morning in Thalland in exchange for their safe conduct out of the country. They had first threatened to kill the hostages unless Israel released 36 Arab prisoners.

IIn Tel Aviv, Foreign Minister Abba Eban said today that Israel had not made any concessions. Mr. Eban, speaking to reporters, said Israel had never considered making any concessions to the

A senior Egyptian Foreign Min-lstry official Under Secretary Hassan Bolbol, was on hand to meet two of the eight Thais on the plane to guarantee the terrorists' safety—Armed Forces Chief of Staff Air Marshal Dawee Chullasapy, and Thal Deputy Foreign Minister Chartebai Chunhawan.

Plane Cordoned Airport authorities banned plintographers and newsmen from approaching the DC-8 jet. The plane was cordoned off and the whereabouts of the four guerrillas, Identified in Bangkok as members of the Black September movement, was not known.

Marshal Dawee told newsmen st an airport press conference that he went to the Israell Embassy in Bangkok yesterday and told the commandos:

"You are my guests. We had a friendly relationship. The cuerrillas did not realize that we were having a sacred day in Thailand to install the crown prince. When they realized this they said: 'We are very sorry. do not cure for Israel, but we care very much for the Thui

In Dublin, Premier Jack Lynch and his cabinet held an emergency meeting to tighten security measures against bombers and enipers from Northern Ireland.

Also in Dublin, police lonight" arrested Rory O'Brady, political leader of the illegal Irish Republlean Army's nulliant Provisional wing. He was seized under the Offenses Against the State Act and could be held 48 hours without a charge, police said.

Political observers said that Mr. O'Brady's detention could be the start of the expected crackdown by Premier Lynch against the IRA and its sympathizers. Although the IRA has long been banned in the Irish Republic, lls political arm, Sinn Fein, is not outlawed. But under the newly revised state offenses act. Mr. O'Brady-who heads the Provi-sionals' Shin Fein-would have to prove that he is not a member of the IRA itsell.

The North Vietnamese sources sald that the American plan would impinge on the right of Vietnamese to conduct their own affairs. Hanoi insisted that it would live up to the cease-fire provisions and rejected American claims that it was preparing to violate the cease-fire. Mr. Hayden said that the North Vietnamese had asserted that the military provisione of the 1954 Indochina agreement had been carried out without violation even though the international supervisory force had been limited to 350 men. American officials have asserted that in October, Hanol agreed to the 5,000-man force. Hanoi has not aknowledged this. Prison ers

The North Vietnamese sources said that Mr. Kissinger made the following substantive proposals, which, they said, would have changed the agreement drastically if they had been accepted.

North Vietnamese Troops The Hanoi officials said that Mr. Kissinger, claiming to be speaking for Salgon, indirectly raised the issue of withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam, For instance, Mr. Thuy said, "Kissinger insisted that there should be some phrase, some sentence in the agreement, implying the total withdrawal of North Victnamese

North Vietnam has always refused to ocknowledge the 145,000 troops it is said to have in South Vietnam, and Mr. Kisainger said on Dec. 16 that although Saigon might want a total withdrawal, that was not the American position. The United States, Mr. Kissinger said wanted language, however, that would "make clear that the two parts of Vietnam would live in peace with each other."

Recognition of Viet Cong Hanol claimed that the original draft accord called for formal recognition of the Provisional Revolutionary Government, or Viet Cong, as one of the two political forces in South Vietnam after a settlement, But the Hanol officials said that Mr. Kissinger wanted to eliminate any mention of the Provisional Revolutionary Gov-ernment in the agreement. They said that be was trying to get language in which only the Salgon government would be recognized as a legitimate force in South Vietnam. This issue is not been discussed by the United States in public, and Hanoi did not provide specific

Role of National Council The original draft accord called for the establishment of a council for national reconciliation and concord, with representatives from Saigon, the Vict Cong and neutralists particlpating.

The Hanoi officials said that because of Salson's concern. Mr. Kissinger wanted to reduce the importance of this council. They said that the original agreement provided that the council would be organized on a national and a local level, but that Mr. Kissinger, in the latest talks, wanted to eliminate the lower levels of the council.

Mr. Thuy said that the original accord had set up the council as a body to oversee "the implementation of the signed agreements, of the cease-fire, of preserving the peace, and of deciding the modalities and procedures for the general elections and to organize the elec-tions." He said that in the latest talks, Mr. Kissinger wanted the council only to organize the general elections.

Mr. Kissinger, in discussing the council, said that the United States wanted to make sure that the group could not be interpret-ed as a disguised coalition government, to which Saigon objects.

The Supervisory Force

Mr. Kis:inger said at his press conference that Hanol's proposal for an international supervisory force was inadequate to maintain of war within 60 days, parallel with the withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam. It called for the release of political prisoners in South Vietnam within 90 days, Hanot said. Mr. Thuy said that at the latest talks Mr. Kissinger had made the release of political prisoners-mostly Viet Cong-contingent on the with-drawal of North Vietnamese American officiale have indicated in recent days that Hanol, in retaliation, made a new proposal linking the release of American prisoners to the release of polltical prisoners.

The Hanol sources insisted that Mr. Kissinger had threstoned them with renewed and heavier bombing similar to what is now going on if the American proposals were not accepted. That is why, Mr. Thuy said, children were evacuated from Hanol on Dec. 3, before the breakdown in the talks. American officials have pointed to the evacuation of Hanol as evidence that North Vietnam had planned in advance to avoid signing an agreement.

Both Mr. Hayden and Mr. Livingstone said that their impressions were that Henoi would not be bombed into submitting to the American proposals and that Mr. Thuy's assertion that no negotiations could take place until the bombing north of the 20th parallel was stopped should be taken seriously. Raids north of the par-

Mr. Hayden said that the North Vietnamese had asserted that using air power to force them to yield was like "eating soup with

High Degree No Ticket to Teaching Job

By Andrew Barnes

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (WP).—An advanced university degree. once a ticket to a secure world of teaching, has become the mark of many young Americans looking for jobs.

The Modern Language Association, the largest U.S. academic society, with 29,000 members, has been holding its annual convention here this week. The busiest rooms are the job-placement

Morning and afternoon, a group crowds around the slogle bulletin board beaded "vacancies," staring intently at the half-dozen joh offers, three Feace Corps recruitment posters, and a card an-

"Please. No interviews except those previously suggested by let-ter. Dwight Eddins. University of Alabama."

Despite some signs that the extremely tight job situation of recent years for holders of masters' and Ph.D. degrees may be easing, the people looking for jobs see no evidence of it. The Drincipal reason for the shorters principal reason for the shortage of university teaching jobs is simply shortage of money to pay more teachers.

"We're not fit for soything.

We're over-educated," said Dr. Rita Stein, who received her degree from Columbia University a year ago and has found only part-time teaching, which she supplements with proofreading

There Aren't Any Jobs'

The association has a new bulletin to inform job seekers about which universities are hiring. "They might as well not publish it," said Dr. Stein. "The information is that there are not any jobs."

James Ballowe, English chair-man at Bradley University, in Peorla, Ill., has seen his department shrink from 29 to 21 since 1968. Bearing the brunt have been professors with four, five or six years of experience. At or just after that level university teachers must be granted tenure, which makes it extremely ficult to fire them. Engloeers, among the hardest hit by the drop in employment over the last three years, are somewhat more in demand this year than last. The demand for women graduates is up, and the demand for qualified blacks remains greater than the supply. The excess supply of holders of higher degrees does not appear to be a result of students seeking extended deferment from military service. This year, with the threat of the draft largely removed, the number of firstyear graduate students did not drop. It rose by 3.5 percent.

A spokesman for the Nicaraguan Red Cross had sald there was only enough food in the city to last for 72 hours unless means could be found to transport relief supplies being sent in from nations around the world.

At least 3.000 persons died in the earthquake. Officials said the final toll might remain unknown forever because of the number of bodies burned in the ruins of the city.

Army patrols dispersed about 300 persons from an airport warehouse last night, where they gathered and shouted. "We want food, we want food."

Study Finds 'Dramatic' Change

Most Catholic Women in U.S. Now Using Contraceptives.

By Jane E. Brody

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (NYT).— crease. The authors anticipate A "dramatic change" has taken piace in the birth-control practices of Roman Catholic women in the United States, with more than two-thirds of married Catholics now using con-traceptive methods dis-proved by the church, the latest find-ings of the 1970 National Pertility Study show.

The study indicates that by 1970, 68 percent of Catholic women between the age; of 18 and 39 were using birth-control methods other than rhythm, the only method approved by the church. This represents an in-crease from 30 percent in 1955 and from 51 percent in 1965.

These figures confirm implications of previous findings of the fertility study, which showed a sharp reduction in the number of children Catholic couples are having and intend to have. This study, released in May, showed that young Catholic women want-ed on the average 2.75 children. down from 3.45 in 1965. The comparable figure for non-Catholic women was 2.35, down from 2.57.

The study also had shown that oumbers were using more reliable methods of contraception.

Major Befections

In fact, according to the new study, to be published in the Jan. 5 issue of the journal Science, defections from traditional church teachings on birth control have been great. particularly among younger Catholic women and those "most committed" to their religion.

The authors of the study. Charles P. Westoff of Princeton University and Larry Bumpass of the University of Wisconsin. measured "commitment" by the frequency with which the woman receives holy communion. They found that 53 percent of wemen receiving communion at least once a month the "more committed") were using unapproved methods of contraception.

Amtrak to Put 4 Fast Trains On Midwest Runs by Mid-1973

The publicly subsidized railroad corporation said that it is leasing two trains from a French railway equipment manufacturer and is buying two others from United Aircraft Corp.

The trains will operate on the Chicago-Milwaukee and St. Louis-Chicago routes.

Fowered by airplane-type gas furbine engines, the trains have a low center of gravity and can operate faster than conventional equipment under existing track and right-of-way conditions. Roger Lewis, president of the National Railroad Passenger Corp., said: "We are convinced from our experience with electrified Metro-liners in the Washington-New York corridor that the public is eager to have modern, highperformance railway service.

"The acquisition of these trains and their assignment to these ser-vices will be the start of a major program to improve our highpotential, non-electrical services."

In Use Since 1967 The French trains are new units from a modernized high-speed turbo line which has been operating there since 1967. The two-five-car trains, built by ANF-Frangero, are being acquired inder 2 two-year lease with an option to buy, Mr. Lewis said, through an arrangement with a prospect for peace that "you can bank on." in the President's words, to the most savage and senseless act of war ever visited, over a scant week and a half, by one sovereign people upon another? And perhaps more to the point, what is the logic and where are the lessons of history that say we can run this reel backward after a time and proceed from terror bombing to "peace"-that there is, in other words, some rational eausa and effect here, running either way?

The sad, hard answer is that while there are few conclusive lessons from history in this matter, the supposed "logic" of proceeding from bargaining to bombing and back to bargaining, in the name of peace, has been fundamental to this country's Vietnam strategy of "limited war" by "graduated response" over more than eight years and two administrations. In the beginning, it was accepted with precious little protest, by Democrats and Republicans alike; and it was quietly acquiesced in by a good many of the people who now talk of "genocide" and "war crimes" and of the into erable "immorality" of our current policy.

That we recite this background is in no way to suggest that we think Mr. Nixon is somehow mandated to continua to compound past follies. On the contrary, having promised us so many times to end this war within his first four years and having failed so dismaily, for all that he might have learned from recent history, he is under greater obligation than any of his predecessors were to re-evaluate the mission, to reassess our capabilities, to recognize our limitationsand to change our strategy. But the change that is needed is not likely to be encouraged by denouncing the horror now unfolding in the skies over North Vietnam as something entirely new and different and essentially Nixonian, If this strategy is contrary to all we hold sacred, it would seem to follow that in some measure it always was. In short, we are not going to find it easy to work our way out of a 10-year-old war effort that has demonstrably failed of its early high hopes unless we are prepared to begin by admitting little more than a week. that this is so; that we are all caught up, in one degree or another, with the responsibility for a war plan gone horribly wrong: that this country undertook an enterprise it could not handle, at least in any time frame and at any expenditure of lives and resources worthy of the objective; and that it would be the mark of a big power to cut our losses and settle for the only reasonable outcome that we now must know could ever have been realistically expected.

We should begin, in other words, not simply by shouting about the immorality of what we are now doing, but by first acknowledging the tragic impracticality of what we set out to do, and the enormity of the miscalculations and misjudgments that have with the administration's seeming insistence honor of the past week and a half. on a fully enforceable, guaranteed settlement

How did we get in a few short weeks from of the war on the old, familiar, original terms -- "freedom" and "independence" and "enduring peace" for Sonth Vietnam; anything seriously short of that, Mr. Nixon would have us believe, would be abject surrender, the abandonment of an ally, and a "stain upon the honor" of the United States.

> Leaving aside the cliches which have come to be so inevitable a part of evary serious presentation of our policy, there are two things tragically wrong about this statement of our aims, and the first is that such objectives are demonstrably unobtainable. The violent and embittered conflict that has ensulfed Indochina for several decades is not going to ba "settled" by any piece of paper that Dr. Henry Kissinger could concelvably persuade both North and South Vietnam to sign. That is the loud lesson of the collapse of the last peace plan; it asked too much of a situation which can only be resolved in ambiguity. Such is the conflict of purpose on both sides, in fact, that it ean fairly be said that in negotiating a "settlement" we are in fact merely writing the rules of engagement for a continuing struggle for control of South Vietnam by other less openly military means.

So we are not talking about "peace," and etill less about "abandoning an ally," for thera can be no resolution of the fighting which will not present each side both with risks and with opportunities of losing-or winning-in large measure what each has been fighting for. To pretend that we are doing otherwise-that we are making "enduring peace" by carpet-bombing our way across downtown Hanoi with B-52s-is to practice yet one more cruel deception upon an American public already cruelly deceived. It is, in brief, to compound what is perhaps the real immorality of this administration's policy—the continuing readiness to dissemble; to talk of "military targets" when what we are hitting are residential centers and hospitals and commercial airports; to speak of our dedication to the return of our POWs and our missing in action even while we add more than 70 to their number in

We think the American people could faca the truth of how little there is we can really count on accomplishing in Vietnam-if they were to hear it from the President. But we have not heard from the President-not since "peace was at hand." Instead, we have heard from surrogates and spokesmen and military headquarters, cryptically, about the loss of men and aircraft and the alleged military significance of the raids. It is from others. around the world, that we hear about the havoc our bombers are wreaking on innocent civilians with the heaviest aerial onalaught of this or any other war. All this we are presumably doing to redeem the "honor of America" and this is the second part of what's wrong-and contradictory-about the bing policy. For it is hard start. For only from this admission can we envisage any settlement that we could realproceed rationally to deal with the monu- istically hope to negotiate which could justify mental contradiction in the administration's the effort now being expended to achieve it current strategy. The contradiction begins or wash away the stains on this country's

International Opinion

U.S. Policy in Vietnam

After clapping Peking and Moscow into the detente trap, the U.S. President is availing himself of the detente to win his case in the major international confrontations. In threatening to reconsider the Soviet-American accord on gas, as rumored, Washington, anticipating the reaction of Moscow, is making another gamble on its own strength. Hardly two weeks ago, the Vietham conflict was an anachronism which had to be rapidly eliminated to pass to the achievement of the grand design, "peace for a generation," the platform on which Mr. Nixon was elected.

Today one feels that "pax Americana" in Vietnam constitutes the finality to which everything must contribute, in the first place the Chief Executive's visits to Peking and Moscow and the economic and human dividends he held out before his hosts, the Soviete especially, to make them believe that the delights of consumption have now become indispensable to them.

WASHINGTON.-The death of Harry Truman dramatizes the immense changes that have taken place in the style and conduct of the United States government during the last generation. Like President Nixon, he was a combative and even pugnacious man who was trained on Capitol Hill and presided over the Senate as vice-president, but here the similarities end and the differences emerge.

Unlike President Nixon, ha believed in a strong cabinet, chose powerful and outspoken men, and gave them wide authority in the formulation and administration, of his noticies. His first major move after the death of Franklin Roosevelt was to relax the grip of the White House over foreign policy, and replace Edward R. Stettinius with James F. Byrnes of South Carolina as secretary of state. When Byrnes began to take this grant of power too seriously, Truman got rid of him and put Gen, George Marshall in the State Department along with Dean Acheson, and finally made Acheson secretary of state. The contrast at State today is almost

Some of the unsuccessful candidates had strong backing from the Communist party and other official quarters, according to these sources. But the academy's elections are by genuinely secret ballot, and the scientists demonstrated that they knew how to take advantage of this procedure. They also failed to fill eight vacancies among tha academy'e

500-Ruble Stipend

A full member of the academy receives a stipend of 500 rubb ($600) a month for life, in addition to any other salary he may earn. An average worker's salary is about 135 rubles mouthly. If he lives in Moscow, an academician also has the use of chauffeur-driven academy cars and special shops closed to most citizens. The academy's corresponding members have a stipend of 300 rubles monthly.

Intellectuals here said the refusal to fill so many openings at one session of the academy appeared to be unprecedented. The academy has refused before to fill vacancies, however.

Indeed, the two hard-line ideologists voted down this year had both been rejected previously, according to these sources. They were Mikhail Iovchuk of Moscow's Institute of Philosophy and Viktor Chkhikvadže, a Georgian lawyer and expert on military law. According to reliable sources here, Chkhikyadze had connections to Josef Stalin and his last secret police chief, Lavrenti Beria.

When Chkhikyadze's name came up at this year's election, according to one source, a member said-having said enough to kill Chkhikvadze's chances, according to this source.

Apparently the most prestigious loser was Vyncheslav Yelutin, the Soviet minister of education, who is a metallurgist. His defeat was explained as a decision by full-time scientists that a government official didn't have enough time for the research and writing that befits an academician. Elections to the academy are accompanied by much politicking and persuasion, according to intellectuals here. Some Moscow intellectuals saw the academy's independence as a sign of a liberal spirit among the natural scientists who dominale the academy, but other sources said this interpretation was too simple. Whatever the full explanation, the election does seem to prove that the scientists have the courage of their convictions.

Notorious Lysenko

This was not always so. In Stalin's time, the academy picked the candidates it was told to. including the notorious charlatan Trofim Lysenko. Lysenko was a piologist who reportedly fabricated the results of experiments to "prove" that environmental factors could creale permanent changes in plants. He convinced Stalin that this was "Marxist" science and became an influential figure in Soviet science.

Lysenko, now discredited, is still member of the academy. "A few people say hello lo him from a distance" at academy meetings, "but nobody goes up to him and to say hello," according to one Another unusual member of the academy is Andre Sakharov, known as the falher of the Soviet hydrogen bomb, and now one of Moscow's most outspoken dissident intellectuals. Despite his many public demonstrations for civil rights in the Soviet Union, Sakharov continues to collect his 500 rubles a month.

There have been rumors that pressure might be applied to remove Sakharov from the academy, but there has been no firm evidence of this. Apparently, no full member has ever been removed, and intellectuals here say the academicians themselves would be extremely rejuctant to create a precedent for voting people out of the body, for any

Prof. Trilling and others who resist the new cults of unreason are not under any illusion about the goodness of this age. They argue, rather, that reason is the basis of our political society and that, we need more of it, not less. They believe that civilization is worth saving.

Faith in reason and civilization has been one of the intangible victims of Richard Nixon's Christmas bombing offensive against North Vistnam. If the American policy have forsaken any attempt at reasoned justification. An example was the official U.S. reaction to news that the 1,000-bed Bac Mai Hospital in Hanoi had been bombed. The chief Pentagon spokesman, Jerry W. Friedheim, dismissed the report as "propaganda" and went on to say: "We have not struck a large 1,000-bed civilian hospital. I have no information that supports that at all."

The word "lie" does not adequately describe that statement in its contempt for truth. For The New York Times had just published an account of the devastating bomb damage to the hospital by an impeccable eye-witness, Telford Taylor, a retired U.S. Army general and pro-fessor at Columbia Law School

"rie managements' toast has been to nostalgia, with which we couple the names of Noel Coward and John Osborne, two writers who are beginning to seem alike in their sometimes queralous distaste for most of modern life. Sir Noel, at least. beeps his attitudes out of his plays, and his abundant good qualities were in evidence in a glittering revival of "Private Lives," with Maggie Smith overplaying her part, and Robert Stephens underplaying his, both to devastating effect, and also in "Cowardy Custard," a collection of 70 or so of his songs, all of them displaying melody and

Mr. Osborne preferred a full frontal attack on his audiences' values in his anti-play "A Sense of Detachment" at the Royal Court, which did dirt on all that the theater's other writers have striven to perform. It finished on a note of theatrical shockactor to audience: "God rot you!" -that recalled the first act ending of Mr. Osborne's earliest surviving play, "Epitaph for George Dillon," which was among the best revivals of the year at the splendid Young Vic. Still, thanks are due to Mr. Osborne for his adaptation of Theen's "Hedda Gahler," which had a chilling performance in the title role from Jill Bennett.

A similar theme, moral ahsolutes and their human consequences, informed the year's other new play of note, E. A. Whitehead's "Alpha Beta," which was less a play than a scream of pain, showing the damage that two people, a husband and a wife, can inflict upon one another. It inspired superb performance: from Albert Finney and Rachel Roberts.

Shakespeare suffered some, notably at the voice of Anthony Hopkins in the National's "Macbeth." which was a great disappointment, despite Michael Blakemore's inventive production. Charles Marowitz at the Open Space chopped up "Othello." adding speeches by Malcolm X and Eloridge Cleaver, to produce a black power play. The Royal Shakespeare Company more effectively turned "Othello" into a Victorian tragedy of sexual repression, with Emrys James scoring as an envious lower-class

As ever the British musical flew in ever decreasing circles until it finally disappeared into the inanities of "Pull Both Ends," "Tom Brown's School-days," "Liberty Ranch," "Smilin' Through," and "Stand and Deliver," "Trelawny" tried harder, hut failed to add anything but undistinguished times to Pinero's original, and the year ended with excesses of Anthony Newley and Leslie Bricusse's "The Good Old Bad Old Days."

There were two exceptions: "Popkiss." a small scale but quite charming marriage of music and farce that, like the others, flopped at the box office, and "I and Albert," an Anglo-American collaboration on the life of Queen grievous loss with the tragic leaping.

Sadly, a better show. "Company," opeued and closed during the year. "Company" did not take refuge in the past: It was witty and tuneful and communicated some wry truths about modern marriage and the high cost of loving. It was replaced by the poorer "Applause," which seems certain to achieve great success. if only for the hrazen appeal of ils star, Laureu Bacall.

It was also the year of Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd-Webber. Their "Jesus Christ, Superstar" opened to self-out performances, an experience with all the kitech of a Dayglo crucifix.

What else is worth a mention? Certainly two plays at the Royal Court: Arnold Wesker's celebra-tion of life, "The Old Ones," and the German author Harold Müller's "Big Wolf," a harsh play of a teen-age gang attempting to survive the brutalities of war. The fringe produced a new author of promise in Bernard Pomerance, a 32-year-old New Yorker, whose 'Foco Novo" was an angry attack on U.S. involvement in South American politics.

Shaftesbury Avenne found an excellent new comedy writer, Charles Lawrence, who has something of Neil Simon's gift for gags. His comedy, "My Fat Friend," huilt around the unlikely subjects of obesity and homosexuality and the comic talents of Kenneth Willlams, was the third success of the year to be directed by Eric Thompson, Mr. Thompson's sensitivity, his ability to reveal character through small gestures, also added to Alan Avckbourn's gentle comedy "Time After Time." and a hrilliant revival of R.C. FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Commonwealth, Seeburg in Deal Seeburg Industries has acquired the business and operations of Seeburg Corp. of Delaware from Commonwealth United Corp. upon completion of Commonwealth's previously announced settlement plan. As a result Sceburg Industries takes over all of the coin-operated phonograph, rending machine, musical games, musical instruments and hearing aid operations formerly conducted by Commonwealth. In oddition Sceburg Industries has issued 2.23 million common shares and warrants for 380,000 common stares, exercisable at $17.50, which have been delivered to former creditors of Commonwealth and to subscribers. Commonwealth has changed its name to Iota Industries Inc. and bas effected a reverse split of its common stock on a one-for-19 basis.

About $130 million of indebtedness and imdetermined millions of dollars of contlogent liabilities of Iota have been settled or compromised. Iota will continue to operate as a separate corporation.

U.S. Steel Output Record Seen W.B. Boyer, president and chief executive officer of Republic Steel Corp., 8878 1973 will be a year of strength for the U.S. steel industry. The industry made 'a dramatic recovery in 1972 after s dismal ahipment and profits experience in the last half of 1971," Mr. Boyer sa's, adding that *current indicators point to a record 96 million to 100 million tons for 1973." The auto industry appears beaded for its second-largest output of cars in history. Mr. Boyer says, and home building was a bright snot in a construction industry that lagged behind expectations for most of 1972. He adds, bowever, that despite the voluntary steel emport limitations, there is a continulog concern in the industry because imported steel is capturing sizable tonnages of the domestic demand for steel and steel products.

Freuch Third in Oil Concessions

Entreprise de Recherches et d'Activités Petrolieres (ERAP) and Ste Nationale des Pétroles d'Aquitaine, both French-state-controlled, own the world's third-largest overail oil exploration area. ERAP reports. The combined orea in which the two firms hold exploration permits amounts to 1.05 militon square kilometers in 40 countries, about 50 percent offshore. The world's largest area is owned by the Royal Dutch Shell group, with 2.3 million square kliometers, fol-lowed by Texaco, with 1.77 millien square klioineters. ERAP savs.

To Offset Previous 'Soft' Line

Expert Sees Tougher U.S. Trade Policy

-Foreign trade partners of the United States will have to tolerate a much tougher American trade policy, according to a senior fellow at the Brookings Institution, Fred C. Bergsten. Addressing the American Economic Association here, Mr.

Bergsten said. "The United States has already begun to administer its anti-dumping and counterrailing duty laws with increased vigor, and to bargain much harder than it has in the past."

This tougher policy would continue to be necessary to erast the legacy of "soft positions" of the past and "establish sufficient credibility for any administration to win congressional and public confidence in its ability to negotiate major new trade liberalization without selling out the U.S. interest," he said.

Call on Europe It is clear, Mr. Bergsten said, that other countries could no longer look to the United States to always take the lead in laucching negotiations and in making concessions to breok the legiams so that negotiations would suc-Europe, he said, should exercise a special responsibility for new trade talks. Mr. Bergsten sald other coun-

The department said the reduced direct investment outflows may have reflected the much smaller increase this year in toreign affliates' plant and equipment spending, while the sharply increased corporate borrewing was partly related to improved credit market conditions in Europe. Gain in GNP In U.S. Seen At $33 Billion

Study Says Rise Due To Consumer Outlays

By H. Erich Heinemann

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (NYT).-The total output of goods and services in the American economy rose by a record $33 billion in the fourth quarter ot 1972, Chase Econometric Associates said yes-

Chase Econometrics, a subsidi-ary of Chase Manhattan Bank. said that this gain would bring the country's gross national prod-uet to an average of $1,197.1 hltlion in the final three months of the year oneasured at a sessonally-odjusted annual rates, as compared to $1,164 billion during the July-September period.

This estimate, assuming it proces to be accurate, would mean that the GNP averaged $1.152.4 hillion for the full year of 1972, up an even $102 billion from 1971.

According to Michael K. Evans. president of Chase Econometrics. much of the impetus for the huge rise in GNP in the fourth quarter came from "an exceedingly large rise" in outlays for consump-tion, which he estimated climbed by $17.5 billion, when calculated at an annual rate.

Advance Figures

Chase Econometrics, in common with many other economic con-sulting concerns, regularly publishes estimates of the GNP well in advance of the release of the official government data, which is normally scheduled for the middle of the month following the end of the quarter-or mid-January in the current case.

Last September, at a time when most economists were expecting a much larger gain in third-quarter GNP. Mr. Evans said that It would rise "only $24 billion" to a quar-terly average of $1.162 billion. The actual figure, after several revislons, was $1,164 billion.

Mr. Evans noted resterday that his estimate of a $33 billion gain in the fourth quarter-which was generated by a computer run of Chase Econometrics's large-scale mathematical model of the economy-"is 53 billion higher than most people are estimating for this quarter.

In the Chase analysis, the vast bulk of the $17.5 billion rise in consumption outlays during the quarter came from spending on non-durable goods and services. which were estimated to have risen, respectively, $9 billion and 57 billion.

Chase Econometrics estimated that investment spending ac-GNP in the fourth quarter. Of the $9 billion gain, $4 billion was in the business plant and equipment sector, $3 billion went to housing, and $2 billion was in inventories.

Mr. Evans commented that "the long-awaited spart in inventory investment finally seems to be un-

Conglomerates Cause Loss Of Information, Study Says

The trouble with conglomerate companies is that they cause an "information loss," concludes a lengthy stoff study expected to he released by the Federal Trade Commission next week.

Whether the survey could lead to additional corporate reporting requirements would depend, in part, on the reactions of the FIC commissioners and political caders to the study.

IN MY OWN WAY An Autobiography By Alan Watts. Pantheon, 400 pp. $7.95.

Reviewed by Thomas Lask

LAN WATTS has always been something more than a popular interpreter of Eastern reli-gious thought to the West. He has also been an exemplar, a participant, a function, so to speak, of his teachings. He is not a man, say, like Arthur Waley, essentially a technician, bringing over the thoughts of one language into another. Mr. Watts had to make his way through a conventional Church of England uphringing to the position he holds today. Such a journey has made his writings something special and given them, in the eyes of the layman anyway, a weighty authority. That doesn't mean that he hasn't had to face up to a great deal of criticism. He mentions in the current volume that he tends to eclectic and that he really is not interested in sorting out the fine differences between Taoism and Buddhism. Nor is he willing to think of them in their pure etate. He prefers to mix their thought with psychoanalysis, semantics, even quantum me-chanics. He has also been criticized because he has refused to take the traditional route, in matters of ritual and the like, to the heart of these philosophies. However, nothing goes to waste. This contention has given a fine, sharp edge to his writing. Mr. Watts was born in a small town, Chislehurst, near Canterbury, and, when he grew up, attended the Cathedral School there. He has the fondest memories of his birthplace; its streets, stores, shopkeepers, and of his parents, who seem to have done him no harm. He was born in 1915, in the middle of World Wer I, but the town he describes could have come out of the novels of Mrs. Gaskell or George Eliot. Nevertheless, it appears to have been a good place for a boy to grow up in. Even as a child he showed an interest in Buddhism and theosophy and he became a Buddhist, he says, while still in his teens. Evidently there was nothing wrong in taking such a step. His teachers were pleased with his initiative. Interest in any religion was welcome,

Mr. Watts did not go to the university, but educated himself with his readings, discussions, meetings and the like. He joined the group around a Yugoslav guru, Dmitrije Mitrinovic, founder of the New Britain movement, which, Mr. Watts says, aimed to save Europe from Hitler and economic anarchy. Europe refused to be saved and young Watts bowed out of politics. Although he knew a war was going to break out, he felt he would have no place in it and he left England for America, with a wife, who turned out to be an American helress. In America, Mr. Watts marked time for a while truly combine the essential teachings of Christianity and Eastern philosophy, studied for the Episcopalian priesthood and was ordained and assigned as chaplain to Northwestern University, outside Chicago.

Although be knew he could not stay in his post, the break came when he wandered outside the marriage fold. Obviously no bishop could stand a chaplain who virtually preached free love. His wife did not stand for it either and they were separated. Mr. Watts moved to the West Coast, settled in Mill Valley, served for a while at Dean of the American Academy of Asian Studies, wrote books and articles, lectured and became a member of what was later known as the Sen Francisco Renaissance, His contribution was the expounding of Zen Buddhism and he believes he strongly influenced the Zan-Best crowd that then centered on San Francisco. He took a further step for himself about 1980 when he decided to throw off all bourgeois trappings and to free himself from them in the matter of dress, enjoyment of the senses, life style and the like. That decision included a session in the use of mind-expanding drugs.

Mr. Watts did not make this journey alone, of course, and his book is full of the names of those who helped him, accompanied him or cast him off names like Krishnamurti, D. T. Suzuki, Aldous Huxley, B. I. Belt among many, many others. I have refrained from setting forth Mr. Watt's beliefs, since there is always the danger of doing violence to something that, no matter how well put, remains rather elusive and fragile. It can be said though that his teachings are free of narrow doctrine, that they stress that spirit of the world is one, that there is more than one way of encountering it. that the godhead resides inside us, that the immediate moment is more toly than the past or future and that the key to the present is joy and happiness. It seems a helici very hard to reject.

But having come this far, I must confess that I was much tet down by the memoir. It seemed to me a contained, turned in, almost precious volume, I could scarcely recognize the decades he was dealing with. He never seems to have taken a public stand, involved himself in com-munity effort, identified with human kind. Even his children were an intrusion into his exist-Obviously, such a man ence. Obviously, such a man never had to vote for a school board. At times he keeps flailing at a dead horse. Throughout the book he keeps celebrating the quality of flashly love, the bene-fits of his adulterous excursions. The fact is no one really cares. For centuries men have been do-ing what Mr. Watis tild without ing what Mr. Watts did without all that metaphysical justifica-tion. Time and again, he criti-cizes our civilization for the way it has cinttered up our lives with what we don't need. But I notice that Mr. Watte's own needs are considerable: fine wines, gourmet foods, leisure to read and study.

tial; what others need is excess. I know that he feels that it has been a long, rocky road from Chislehurst to Mill Valley. But I'm not sure. In spite of his title, nothing really got in the way. Mr. Watts did all right.

NFL Dolphins' Defense Is Seeking To Kick Steelers and Take 'Names'

By Leonard Shapiro

MIAMI, Dec. 29 (WP).-They have been known simply as the "No Names" and in this year of Miami's 15 straight victories and 2,960 yards rushing—both profes-sional football records—the Dolphins' defense seems to prefer it that way.

Other teams have their Gerela's Gorillas, Franco's Italian Army, Fearsome Foursome and Purple Gang, but the anonymous Dolphins just keep crunching along on the road to Super Bowl VII and—they hope—a return engage-ment against the man who gavs them their name. Faulty Memory

Dallas coach Tom Landry couldn't think of any of the Dolphin defenders' names before last year's Super Bowl. And then the Cowboys prevailed, 24-3, adding insult to injury.

"I kind of like the No Names," said free safety Jake Scott. "We just do our jobs. We have no superstars. We get it done." In-deed, the Dolphins this sesson led the American Conference in total defense and rushing defense and were third against the pass. They also ranked second in interceptions with 26.

Balanced Defense

"It's the most balanced defense I've ever been associated with." said Mike Scarry, the defensive line coach. "There is nothing these men don't do well."

On Sunday, they meet the Pittsburgh Steelers at Three Rivers Stadium for the American Conference championship and a

The 'Reward' For Staubach Is First Start

By George Solomon

DALLIAS, Dec. 29 (WP) .- Roger Staubach will make his first start of the season at quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys Sunday in the National Conference champlouship game against Washington at RFK Stadium.

Cowboy coach Tem Landry announced after yesterday's practice he was starting Staubach ahead of Craig Morton because of Staubach's performance in last Saturday's 30-28 playoff victory in San Francisco.

Staubach, who separated his right shoulder in an exhibition game last August, underweot surgery and was not restored to the active roster until Oct. 32. Morton started each of the Cowboys' 14 regular-season games and last Saturday's playoff battle. But when the Cowboys fell behind, 28-13, late in the third quarter, Landry went to Stanbach.

Staubach responded by guiding the Cowboys to a fourth-period field goal, followed with a 20yard touchdown pass to Billy Parks with 1:30 remaining and, with 53 seconds on the scoreboard, tossed a 10-yard scoring strike to Ron Sellers that won the game.

When someone accomplishes a feat like that, he deserves a Landry said. "His reward is to start Sunday's game." "I would say I'm more excited about Sunday's game than I was before the Super Bowl," said Staubach, who last year led the Cowboys to their first National Pootball League championship.

"I haven't played much this season," he added, "but now I have the chance to make up for a lot of things. It should be a game highly charged with emotion. That's what I enjoy."
Staubach added, "Why this is almost as blg as the Army-Navy game in 1963."

Landry's only worry appeared to be Staubach's lack of playing time during the regular season. Before last Saturday, he had thrown only 20 passes all year, 319 fewer than Morton. Against San Francisco, however, Staubach completed 12 of 20 for 174 yards, and two touchdowns.

Landry also might have taken into consideration the fact the Cowboys have never lost a game which Staubach started and finished.

Staubach's running style is in contrast to Morton's orthodox method of quarterbacking. Last year in Washington, Staubach helped defeat the Redskins, 13-0, when he eluded a Washington rush and ran 29 yards for a firstquarter touchdown.

In the past two years, George Allen-coached Redskin teams have had problems containing quarterbacks with a gift for moving around. Was ft a factor in vesterday's decision?

"It could have been a factor," Landry replied with a grin, But cago White Sox cut him loose. I'm not saying." He appeared in 32 games for the "Hooestly," said Staubach, A's as a middle-inning reliever "this is a tremendous thrill. Now I've got to make sure I feel won-lost record and 3.00 earned this good Sunday night." run average.

running backs. Franco Harris had 21 receptions and John Puqua 18. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw also likes to aim for rookie tight end John McMakin, who has caught 21 passes.

"He puts a lot of pressure on the linebackers," said Dolphin defensive captain and signal-caller Nick Buoniconti, 32, who leads the Dolphins in tackles. "But we've heen able to come up with big plays when we have to. We won't do anything different this week."

Little Big Man

It has been said that Buoniconti, at 5-foot-11 and 220 pounds, one of the smallest middle-linebackers in the jeague. is primarily responsible for the Dolphins' defensive success. Teammate Scott agreed. I don't think we'll ever know how much he means to us until he retires," he said. "Instead of going for the big play, we let things fall in place," added Scott. "We used to be a hig mistake team. But this is our third year together under coach (Don) Shula, and we really play well together. "T've probably played more con-servatively this year than ever before. I always used to go for the big interception, But I don't have

While the Farmer's Almanac is as terse and straight as a Vermonter, the Almanach Vermot is vidgar and a little specious -a country product, one feels, designed for city slickers.

Almanacs: Pastime for the Holiday Season

PARIS, (IHT).—Serene and lucid was how Mallarme described. winter. There is no accounting for tastes. For most of us it is simply a season to get through, and one of the oldest ways of passing the time has been by reading almanacs.

Most ancient civilizations han almanacs the work comes from the Arabic for "the climate", and they were useful grides to the stars and seasons: "Look in the almanac, find out moonshine," sald Shakespeare in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

In France the first of these practical calendars appeared in the 14th century. By the 18th century, Restif de le Bretonne was complaining about the nonsense printed in contemporary best-selling almanacs: "Everything bas become trifling and futile in this enlightened age."

In our own enlightened age, we have among others, the sim yellow-backed Old Farmer's Almanac (founded 1792) with its hand; hole for banging on a handy nail, and in France the fatter, bigger red-backed Almanach Vermot, now in its 82d "20". which features hunting tales, idiotic cartoons, schedules of 1: " 's saints' days and country fairs, old songs, recipes, folk medicine and such incidental intelligence as the fact that King Farous was descended from a native of Lyons.

Promises in Ads

The Vermot's ads promise ways to win the tierce, cure constipation, get married, grow taller, build muscles, keep your hair, improve your memory and learn to dance. The Tearful Madonna of Syracuse can fulfill your desires (provided they are sinceres et legitimes , as she has for ages, while among the novelties are ads for books on contraception and on "Lore After

While the Farmer's Almanac is as terse and straight as a Vermonier 'despite such excursions into lerity as a page of Charades, Rebuses, Conundrums, Enigmas, etc., and an essay on the "Mating Habits of the Eastern Skunk", the Almanach Vermot is vulgar and a little specions—a country product, one feels, designed for city slickers, rather like a Norman fermette with a roof of plastic thatch. It does very nicely in Paris and a shop only a few feet from the Place Vendome sells copies daily slarting in the fall.

Not that the Vermot la as good as it was only a couple of years ago. There was for example, a "History of the Nightgowo" i"During the last century in Abyssinia, busband and wife slept in the same nightgown, one sleeve to each spouse"; and endless advice on How to Clean a Dirty Beret sammonia.

water, lots of rinsing, re-soaking, drying in the fresh sir. How sould a berst get out to that dirty?).

Traditionally, the Almanach Vermot has been at its best on folk medicine, Affering cures for everything from itch (cucumber compressed to anemia (drink rin routile, made by soaking 10 rusty natis in white wine for three days and drinking twice daily, Some say the nails should soak for nine days).

In fact rustic charm pays off so well these days that in. 1973 the Almanach Vermot is bringing out a new publication. a "Dictionnaire Vermot de Médecine Populaire." It will list folk medicine cures such as those included in the Almanach, and it will sell for just over three times the price of the Almanach da Vermot, which costs 9.50 francs this year. With all the city bumpkins about, it should do just fine, a cabbage, whose cooked leaves will soothe arthritis, kidney

When the smell of cabbage becomes too intense throughout the house, place a towel scaked in vinegar on top of the pot lid under which your cabbage is cooking.

According to the editor of the Almanach Vermot, there was a plan to modernize it not long ago, but it was realized that rustic charm pays off: "One can move in the most intellectual circles in Paris and still enjoy a simple return to country pleasures," editor Jacques Veissid wrote in the 1971 Almanach But these pleasures wouldn't be pleasures if at village wakes. the natives started talking about structuralism or le manage ment and if local groups started potting on avant-garde plays."
